

IN THE SPECIFICATION

Paragraph beginning on page 8, line 11 is sought to be rewritten as follows:

When a logical page fault occurs and the page of texture is in the second level of memory (i.e. the host's physical memory), it will be fetched in automatically by the graphics memory manager, and the host is not aware anything has happened. In a preferred embodiment, [[For this to happen]] a number of automatic mechanisms [[must]] would be in place for this to happen: